I think that the proposed rule regarding RVSM is a bad idea in that it will most likely be the cause for numerous collisions while the system is in its infancy. It sounds like a feasible system, but the implementation will not be without incident. It is not worth the lives that may be lost to save a little money and a few minutes in route.